They have just succeeded in rejecting Editor Button, of Lynchburg, because during the campaign he talked too plainly about some of them. Editor Mike Glennan, of the Norfolk Virginian, whose nomination for postmaster at Norfolk is pending, is threatened with a similar fate. A Mississippi editor who has been nominated to be postmaster, is also arraigned by these sensitive senators for language used during the campaign in reference to some of the shining lights of the republican party. The nomination of Mr. B. M. Blackburn as postmaster at Madison, is held up on a similar charge. republicans in Georgia who want to keep Mr. Johnson, the present republican postmaster in. The amendment offered by Mr. Logan, extending the provisions of the bill to men who tion as to its application to men who carned a livelihood by intellectual labor. Mr. Brown said then, inasmuch as the people northern constituencies of both parties sent to congress men who favored these pensions; and we must, therefore, conclude that a majority of the tax payers of the north appreved their action. It was to be supposed that if the people of the south had been in the union at the time of the war and the army had been their army and the war had been with a foreign nation, the people of the south would have gone as far in granting pensions as had the people of the north. He (Brown) would therefore vote for the 'bill, but pressed on the senate the propriety and duty of passing, as soon as possible, the Mexican pension bill, and also the bill to pension the few surviving some of whom, he said, resided in Georgia. Unless something were done for the Mexican solders, Mr. Brown would have to withhold his assent from future pension bills.

Mr. Dingley, of Maine, in a brief speech pointed out the needs of the foreign mail service and asked that members should not have their attention diverted from the issue by the use of the term "smbsidy." The rate now paid for the foreign mail service was not fair nor reasonable; they were decent. The senate

The highest rate of pension granted under this section, which shall be for total incapacity to perform manual labor, shall be $24 per wonth, which is hereby made devisible upon that basis for any less decree of disability; provided, that no person entitled to or receiving an invalid pension under existing laws or such as may be hereafter enacted granting pensions for disabilities contracted in the military or naval service of the United States and in the line of duty, greater than that provided for herein, shall received the benefit of this act, but any application therefor pending or who shall hereafter file his application for such pension may, by declaration over his signature at any time, elect to prosecute hissaid claim under this act or under the general laws. amendment provided for nothing but decent compensation.

Mr.McAdoor of New Jersey, opposed the proposition to subsidize American ships, and put forward the idea that if the United States wishes to compete with other nations by the granting of subsidies, it must, owing to the difference in the price of labor, pay 25 per cent higher subsidies than any other country.

Mr. Holman, of Indiana, carnestly opposed the policy of subsidies and contended that the policy would not have the effect of building up American commerce. This policy, which it was sought to engraft anew upon legislation, had in past brought shame and dishonor upon the house of representatives. One of the great corporations which was now asking for this increased compensation had come to a previous house and corrupted the legislators of the country.

This closed the general debate and the committee rose and the house, at five o'clock, adjourned.

In the course of the discussion, which consumed the remainder of the session, Mr. Dockmendment because it was coercive legislation because it assumed to aid commerce at the expense of the foreign postal service; because it held out the persuasive idea of competition, when in fact there was no competition except on two lines; because it would operate as a hindrance to the restoration of American com-merce; because it was a positive violation of the international treaty of Berne; because it was a gift of public mon-ey to private corporations, the larger part of which would go to the Pacific mail steamship company, officered, owned and controlled by Russell Sage, Jay Gould and Sidnoy Dillon. Criticising the amendment in de-would be coerced in accepting legislation of this kind. [Applause on the democratic side] He then proceeded to argue that the subsidy would not have the effect of building up the commerce of the country, and in support of his argument he quoted statistics to show that from 1866 to 1877 (which he termed the "subsidy period") the tonnage and commerce of the country steadily fell off. Much of the subsidy proposed would go to the Pacific

Mail steamship company. He had heard it said that this line was owned by seven hundred different persons, but he declared that it was largely owned and officered by Jay Gould, he merchant marine. No man would go further than he in restoring the merchant ma-rine, but if this could only be done now by means of contributions to the Pacific Mail

Steamship company, he wanted to wait and look out for some other remedy. Under this amendment the Pacific Mail company, of unsavory record, would get $352,198, nearly half the appropriation. He called upon his party friends to halt and hesitate before they gave their sanction to a measure which did not advance or enhance the interests of the merchant marine, but which put into the coffers of this corrupting corporation $326,308 more than it had received last year for the same service. In consideration of this question, he stood on the doctrine of equal rights to all and exclusive privileges to none.

Mr. Bingham, of Pennsylvania, supported the smendment, denying that there was any subsidy in it. It was a question of giving fair and reasonable compensation for services rendered in carrying the mails, without any regard to ownership of the corporation performing services. He replied to Mr. Dock-ery's argument that subsidies did not assist the merchant marine by stating that the real 'subsidy period' was from 1848 to 1859 and that it was in 1856 that the American marine reached the highest standard of prosper-

The committee disclaim any intention of interfering with the civil service law in making the change above noted, while admitting that they would, if adopted, require changes in rules laid down by the commissioner. It makes no provision for the pay of clerks to senators, and makes a total reduction of 225 in the force of employes in the government service at the present time. The appropriation for the collection of internal revenue is decreased $100,000. There are a number of other changes of a minor character in the bill, including reductions in the salaries of a number of sub-treasurers and in those of the United States judges in Louisiana and California.

The general realized early in the day that he would have to address an audience largely adverse to him. The Bacon men were thoroughly organized for the meeting. of the audience gave reasons to expect. General Gordon alluded to the evidence of partiality which the audience manifested, and asked a calm and reasonable listening to his If the audience desired his opponent's success, he had no reason to complain, and if elected he would make a worthy governor. He then alluded to the misrepresentations which had been circulated against him for five years, and answered them. He did not ask vindication. "If," said he, "the life I have lived in peace and in war does not vindicate me, nothing would." He then spoke of the other charges which had been made against him, interspersing his remarks with anecdotes and jokes, and for a time putting the house in a good humor which frequently ripened into hearty laugh-

He himself did not want to be governor ex cept by the free, untrammeled vote of the whole people. When a candidate gave evidence of being afraid of the people, they in turn would become frightened at him. He was willing to submit his claims to the whole people at the ballot box, in primaries, and uld even let those counties vote again which had already instructed for him. [Applause.] General Gordon spoke just one hour BLACK INTRODUCES BACON. Colonel J. C. C. Black introduced Mr. Bacon in a few very graceful remarks, which were loudly applauded. As Mr. Bacon arose he was greeted with tremendous cheers, which lasted several seconds. He made the same answer as formerly to General Gordon's charge as to his being afraid of the people. He was not opposed to primaries, but wanted each county to settle the question of itin own accord, without any interference on hungart. As to General Gerdon's resignation, he thought it a legitimate question for discussion. It was subject to criticism, and he would take the liberty o making such criticisms as he thought it deserved. He did not charge the general with anything, nor did he impute his motives. He hoped the audience would distinctly notice this. He made no personal attack whatever. He had said in his speech some days ago in Augusta, that the campaign on his part be discussed without mud slinging, but he would say that General Gordon had abandoned the high trust to which he had been elected, and under circumstances which justified and were open to criticism. He continued in this line for some time, using the same argument that he has made on former occasions on the same subject. He however, appeared to be particularly pleasant, and affirmed and reaffirmed with each of the insinuating thrusts of bargain and sale, that he meant nothing whatever by it derogatory to the general's character. He then reline of business failures which he said had occurred under his management, and went into details concerning each, He reaffirmed his opposition to the con-vict lease, and said that General Gordon himself was on the original bond of the lessees. He admitted now that the general was as mu disconnected with it as was he, but he did not know whether he was relieved of respon-sibility as a bondsman. He did not know the

It was now General Gordon's time to con clude in a fifteen minutes' address, but as he began the audience grew even more noisy made one or two unsuccessful attempts, never losing his equilibrium. He finally started, and referred to several matters of which his oppo-nent Lad spoken. Among them was his contemptuous reference to Senator Brown. He was surprised that the speaker had so suddenly lost his friendship for the senator. He would recall the time when, a few years ago, he was closeted with him in Atlanta, seeking his sup-port in his gubernatorial candidacy. He was emphatic in his denunciation of the convict lease system, and thoroughly explained, as before, his connection with him, t which Mr. Bacon replied was perfectly satis factory. He regretted very much to be forced to mention a subject which he had not intended speaking of tonight. But the gentleman who preceded him had hinted vile insinuations against his character. "Now," said he, 'I call the attention of this audience to this proposition, that while my honorable competitor disclaims all intention any reflections, it make plain that the purpose, drift and conclusions of his argument in reference to my resignation is this: that John B. Gordon, for the purpose of money making, abandoned a high public trust. Is or is not that the purpose? and did he not seek to enforce it with all the arguments he could command? and did he he no seek to enforce the idea that if elected governor and the temptation were presented would for private gain abandon the office of governor? Now, there are other offices than governor that are also public trusts, and are also important. For instance the adjutancy of the Ninth Georgia regiment. [Great applause.] That was a public trust. [Applause.] It was an important trust, but it was a good one to lay down. [Laughter and applause.] ["Hurrah for the adjutant!"] It was the best place to resign from that my friend could have occupied [great applause] and he did resign it. He acknowledged it and came home. [Applause.] Now, when I only asked the question the other day my young friend got very angry, and the Macon and used almost "cuss words." The represen tation was that General Gordon was so intimidated that he wouldn't refer to it any more Well suppose I acknowledge it. I didn't intend to refer to it any more. But my friend continues to impugn my fidelity to the public interest. He thinks that it is altogether honorable and right to say that General Gordon resigned a public trust and turned his back upon his office for private gain. That is the purpose of his argument, and this assembly knows it.

[Applause.] I think I may claim, without much egotism, that there was one time that I did not turn my back on a public trust---from '62 to '65. [Tremendous applaase.] My honorable competitor thinks this is very unkind. Doubtless it is, certainly very distasteful to me, but how comes it that these personalities are dragged into this debate? How comes it that my com petitor's organs boast that he has placed me on the defensive? How comes it that I am race they will "make it hot for Gordon?"

THE ASPIRANT'S SICKNESS. If I good humoredly "make it hot" for Bacon, ought he to get mad about it? Why, my young friend ought not to make such an exhibition of anger. This is the wrong time to get mad. He ought to have grown mad m '62 to '65. [Great applause.] That wa his time for high spirit and not now. The war is over. Peace prevails. We are all in a good humor. [Great laughter.] Why should he ge mad with me? It was not I that resigned My young friend says he was sick. have no doubt he was. [Applause and laughter.] He had a surgeon's certificate and he come home on it. I remember when some members of that grand old Ninth Georgia were also sick with bullets and came home on a furlough with surgeon's certificates. But they did not stay in Georgia. [Laughter and applause.] They went back to Virginia to receive more bullets if need be in defense of their country. [Great cheering.] Was my friend sick for three years? [Great laughter.] He says I laid down an office for private interest. Well, didn't he lay down one for personal protection? [Loud applause and laughter.] Where was this gentleman who argues that I laid down office for private gain? Where was he from '62 to '65? Where was he when the long lines stretched over hill and valley, woods and fields, in battle array, when the very ground trembled beneath tread of advancing legions, when brave men's hearts thrilled with the wild shout of the charge?

[Loud cheers, and loud cries of "Bacon," WHERE WAS BACON THEN? General Gordon-I don't wonder that you should be unwilling to hear it, my Ba friends. [Loud laughter and cheers.] I don't wonder you seek to drown my voice by shouting 'Bacon! Bacon!,' for it is the best defense you can make of your candidate. [Laughter and applause.] Where was he when his heroic brothers of the Ninth Georgia, footsore, hungry, ragged and-I won't say-you understand [loud laughter] and sick, [laughter] stood only the lonely picket or marched through mud, snow and slush to the battle's front?
Where was he when proud Patriotism her monuments in the dead bodies of liberty's sons? [Loud cheering.] What sort of monuments was he piling Beef, pork, beans, sheep, sorghum, potatoes eggs and goobers. [Storms of laughter and cheers, and bisses from the Bacon men.] That is all right, my Bacon friends, but you see it makes some difference as to whose ox is gored. It is all very fine to talk about General Gorden's resigning, but my young friend is a great martyr when General Gordon talks about his resignation. [Cly of "put him ont."] My friend reminds me of the fellow in the country who got into a fight with a dog. [Groans, cries of "chestnuts" and "Bacon!"] That's it, holler for Bacon; drown my voice! I know how it hurts. I don't blame you at all. [Great laughter.] The dog was about to bite this fellow. He tried to get out of the way. The dog pressed him. Finally the fellow seized a pitchfork and the dog ran upon it and trying to kill me." "Why didn't you turn the other end of the pitchfork?" "Why didn't your dog come at me with the other end?" [Applause and great laughter.] You see my young friend has come at me in the wrong way, hence my use of the pitchfork.

[Great laughter.] He doesn't like the use of the pitchfork, nor do I, but I served notice upon him yesterday, and I repeat the notice tonight, that so long as he sees fit to charge that I ever turned my back upon any duty to my country any where, or under any circumstances, I shall continue to use the instrument upon him. As a fair minded man I must insist that this effort to drown General Gordon's voice shall coase." [Cries of "Bocoh," "Bacon," "Gordon," "Gordon."1 General Gordon declined to speak further. THE CLOSE REACHED.

Thus ended the discussion, the audience dispersing. The good people of the city regret very much the boisterousness of the opera house. They realize that it will have its reaction, if it has not already done so. The crowd was evidently well organized for its purpose and accomplished its object, dem onstrating that the Bacon supporters were in the majority in the meeting, and that they only wanted that spoken which suited them. There were hundreds of the best ladies of the city present who seemed to enjoy the discussion very much until the rudeness of the rough element of the audience made it disagreeable. If there was an officer of the law in the neighborhood, he kept carefully concealed. THE FEELING IN THE COUNTY. I have studied the situation in Richmond very carefully today, and have talked to many friends of both candidates. It is useless to attempt to disguise the fact that the indications are that Bacon will carry the county. It would be a partial statement of the true condition of affairs, and though some of avoided presenting impartial reports of the discussions to which I have listened, I have, in every instance, at least attempted to be fair in the representation of the attitude of each candidate. By saying that indications here are now favorable to Bacon, I refer to the probable result of the choice of delegates from the county, if such choice is made after the fashion which seems to have been adopted as the policy of Major Bacon's supporters throughout the state. If the people of Richmond county can be heard from through the ballot box, General Gordon's friends claim that he would carry the county. He has many enthusiastic workers among the most prominent citizens of the town, among whom are General Evans, Colonel C. C. Jones, Judges W. F. Eve, H. D. D. Twiggs and J. S. Hook, W. E. Keener, Wallace T. Delp, Casper N. Oliver, F. M. Stovall, L. T. Bloom, and many others. The effect of the general's speech to-day has certainly already been noticeable. He stormed a Bacon stronghold and came out with flying colors. His eloquence went to the heart of his hearers, and its effect will be felt in the county. As an old soldier said to me today: "Such a man will never be in want of supporters while the boys of '61 and '65 are alive.' On account of the very strong Bacon influence which has been brought to bear in this county, the candidacy of that gentleman gained strong support here as between Bacon and Simmons. Many committals were then made. Thus when Gordon entered. Richmond county was classed among the strong Bacon counties. Among those who had taken de cided position was Colonel Pat Walsh, of the Chronicle, a power in the state and still stronger in the county. His influence had been thrown in full for Bacon and did its work in solidifying sentiment. Thus when Gordon was announced, he could not be gov-erned by the ties of friendship, which them in the matter of apport. He loved General bound support. Gordon, and I today heard him make the re mark that "it was the most painful act of his life to oppose him." A chief characteristic of the colonel is to stand by his conviction, and in doing so in this instance, General Gor don told him some time ago that he thorough ly understood his position, and could not expect his support. THE TWO ELEMENTS IN RICHMOND. There are two distinct elements in Richmond county politics. Colonel Walsh is the leader of one, and his has been the successful one for years. To this is opposed the "Arca dians," who have fed on hope and lived in the blessed consciousness that they were right, but were being sadly imposed upon by the wick-edness and worldliness of politicians. They were taught from childhood to hate "rings," and have long believed that the "Atlanta ring" was a circle drawn by the revolution of a radius which pivoted on the left hand horn of the devil. Of course General Gordon could expect nothing from the Arcadians. Thus it is that by a strange coincidence these two political factions of Richmond county are found affiliating in this fight. But their ranks are thinning daily, and it would certainly be less remarkable than the result in Lee to hear that

Richmond had gone for Gordon. C. H. The Pot and the Kettle. AUGUSTA, Ga., May 19 .- [Special.] -- General Gordon had the triumph of his life tonight. His reply to Bacon will certainly end the canvass. He literally demolished him. A great number of South Carolinians were present, who said they had come to hear for the first time the man who

A STEANGE CAREER.

It seems that she, the Atlanta girl, and Donnell, had been negotiating together in some way. The letter was written in a lady-like hand, grammar and punctuation faultless, and the lady boasted of her family history, and spoke of the Atlanta girl's family history, and spoke of the Atlanta girl's obstinacy in not living with Donnell at a happy home instead of accepting service as a "menial." The letter wound up with a request for Donnell's photograph, that she might judge of his character by his physiogamy." It was dated May 7.

Since then, by a little inquiry, your correspondent has learned that Donnell married an Indiana woman, who was employed as a linen woman at a hotel. Donnell married her and brought her to Macca. After doing some work on the Mark ham house and at New Holland springs, he got drunk and raised cain with his former wife, and she had him arrested and i filed for bigamy, and the young weman and her child returned to Atlanta. Death in Hawkinsville

MACON. May 19.—[Special.]—Mr. G. M. Davis received a telegram this morning announcing the death of Miss Lucy McCormick, a young lady well-known in Macon. She was eighteen years old. Her death was caused by Heavy Rains.

Macon, Ga., May 19.—[Special.]—At six o'clock yesterday evening the heavy banks of cloud that had been gathering in the southwest, were gliding majestically up the hazy sky, and it was soon evident that a storm was apon us. Like an army with banners the seried banks whirled and tossed in their wild career, and a hurricane made a terrible dash and the country south of Vineville was partially laid waste.

Nelson Bennett.

Macon, May 19.—[Special.]—A report reached the city this morning that Nelson Bennett, the negro injured with a brick yesterday, was dead at his home, beyond Vineville branch. Nelson's career has been a little checkered. He it was who held the weapon that killed the boy Ippy, who was shot down in Perryman's bar, on Cotton avenue, last winter. Perryman's bar was fired that same night, and the affair was the sensation of the hour. Nelson's tragic! taking off reveals these episodes in his career. The shooting was an accident. A Magnificent Donation to Christ Church by Mrs. Dodge.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., May 19.—[Special.]—The Appeal prints the following: The parochial report of Christ church, Frederica, is phenomenal in the magnificence of its offerings. The rector, Rev. A. G. P. Dodge reports the magnificent total of $111,002.80 as having been contributed by that parish within the past year. Thy above sum was bequeathed to the church by the wife of the Rev. Mr. Dodge. Mrs. Dodge died in India on her wedding tour, and before her death expressed the desire that her fortune should be given to the church, and during the past year her husband has turned it into the church treasury. Of that large amount $45,000 has been put in trust as an endowment of the missionary work in the

COUNTING THE VOTE.

An Effort to Undo the Ordinary's Work in Baldwin.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., May 19.—[Special.]—
The contested prohibition case is slowly dragging along before the justices. The job of recounting the vote is a very slow and tedious one—only thirty-five being counted yesterday. A regular pienic of lawyers is engaged on the job—all the home lawyers, three from Eatonton and one or two from Macon. The anti's are contestants, and, as the costs will likely be heavy, probably several thousand dollars, it is a right serious thing for them to undertake this matter. In ease they lose they will have to pay for the fiddling.

An Honest Man Found.

Columbus, Ga., May 19.—[Special.]—In June last a tramp named William Kuight came to this city and stopped at a private boarding house. He staid here a month and left without paying his board bill, and the surprise of the proprietor may be imagined when he found at the express office for him a day or two ago $18 in full payment of Knight's board. The money had been sent from Fall River, Mass. River, Mass.

The Farmers in Crawford.

TAYLOR, Ga., May 19.—[Special.]—The outlook of the farmers is disencouraging at this date. The dry spring has almost demolished the oat crop, while stands of cotton is quite poor. Many fields have the seed yet in the ground.

The gale of hot air of last Saturday done considerable damage, blowing off house tops, removing fences and breaking down timber, also scorching the cotton plant so as to impair the stand very much.

Prompted by friendship, the average shipnaster often gives dutiable articles away, and then again, though very rarely, at Doboy he sells them for gain. Out of one hundred cases of smiggling here ninety-nine certainly are of the mild, justifiable type, and these ninety-nine may be said to be so many apt illustra-tions of the superior sweetness of the forbidden fruit. Let the average land lubber imbibe from a curiously shaped and gaudily labeled bottle the contents of which may be the vilest of concections, and he will smack his lips and exclaim "excellent"—if he knows that it came from some foreign vessel. Let him fill his amber-tipped pipe with the dry sawdust-like contents from a package with a hieroglyphic brand, and the offensive odors will sink him into an ecstatic reverie—if he knows it to be of trans-Atlantic manufacture. Let him puff the blue ringlets skyward while pulling away with all his might at a veritable German cabbage leaf, and with Byron he will sing the praises of the fragrant weed's naked beauties—if con-vinced that it was brought here by some foreign

When the cook went into the kitchen, made a fire and called Mr. Swann to give out the breakfast, but getting no reply the door was opened and Mr. Swann was found lying on the floor before the fire-place dead. It is supposed that he died about midnight, as he was cold and stiff when found. It seemed that from some cause he rose from the bed on which he was elseping, and put on his shoes and laid down before the fire and died while in that position. The cause of his death is not known,

THEY HAVE GONE. A Review of Thomasville's Winter Busi

THOMASVILLE, Ga., May 19.—[Special.]—
The last of northern visitors in Thomasville, has departed—the large hotels have closed nailed up the broad entrances to the verandas and "the season" is over. Thomasville may safely count on 25,000 visitors next winter, and the necessity of building more hotels is forcing itself upon the minds of our capitalists and en-terprising citizens. The Mitchell house and the Piney Woods were both built by home capital, and it is believed as much money can be raised right here as will be needed to build more hotels, now that Thomasville's reputation is clearly established, and there is really need for greater accommodations.

In fact, the delightful winter climate of this place is so well known in the north and west, that by another season two more hotels of the same capacity as the Mitchell house (300 guests) can be easily filled.

guests) can be easily filled.

The city council has accepted Mr. S. Alex.
Smith's proposition to lease the city a park for a number of years, and fine walks and drives will be at once laid off.

The park will be in front of the Piney Woods hotel, the same location heretofore known as Yankee Paradise. The selection is a good one.

And now with water works assured, a city park, two of the best hotels in the south, good railroad facitities and a climate unsurpassed for healthfulness and comfort what is too much for Thomasville to hope for in the fu-

THE BLOWING WINDS. The Terrible Rains Which Have Faller

Throughout the State. MILLEDGEVILLE, May 19.—[Special.]—Late yesterday afternoon a severe rain and wind storm struck this vicinity, and blew down trees and fences promiscuously. About four miles east of here, across Oconee river, nearly all the outhouses and fences on Ed Vinson's place were destroyed, and the roof blown off his dwelling. James Simpson lost several houses and fences, likewise much property on the old Barnes estate. The rain fell in tor-rents, and caused much damage by flooding. Does it Presage War?

From the Monroe, Ga., Advertiser, Saturday evening a dark looking cloud ha ing gathered in the west, moved eastward, the severe wind from which struck Forsyth about 4 o'clock p. m., stirring up the densest and most extensive dust cloud we have ever seen. Save the absence of heat, it reminded us very Save the absence of heat, it reminded us very much of the dry storm that passed over our county in the summer of 1860. We have as yet heard of no special damage in this county resulting therefrom, except the blowing down of some fencing and the new framed house of Dave Morris, a mile or two from town. It seems to have been more severe at some other points in the state. Following the wind was a light, pleasant shower of rain which was very much needed.

A Cyclone Near Milledgeville. MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., May 19 .- [Special.] cyclone passed through the eastern part o the county yesterday evening, destroying houses, fences and orchards, etc. No lives were lost, but a large loss of property occurred. The storm extended but about four miles. It was the heaviest rain and hail storm in moths Residences and outhouses on four plantations

THE MURDER OF PRELLER. Evidence in the Trial of Maxwell in St. Louis

Missouri.

St. Louis, May 19.—The trial of Maxwell for the murder of Prelier began today. After the witnesses told the story of the discovery of the crime, E. Warren, of Worcester, Mass., testified that he was acquainted with the prisoner and Prelier, had met them on board the steamship "Cephalolia," had witnessed their introduction to each other. They seemed to become very intimate, but the prisoner was more demonstrative in his efforts to strengthen the friendship. Maxwell gave it to be understood that he was a physician, having graduated with honors from an English medical college. He also professed to be an attorney and claimed that he had been regularly admitted to the bar. The prisoner had wriften to witness after they arrived in the United States, stating that he and Prelier were about to engage in the cattle business in Texas. The witness had seen the remains found in the trunk and identified them as those of C. Arthur Preller.

Mrs. Margaret Donay, widow became income from all lines. ty, in this state, Monday night. Mrs. Margaret Donau, widow, became insane from religious fanaticism and imagined that she had been called upon by the Lord to sacrifice the lives of herself and her three children to divine wrath. Early in the evening she threw herself upon her knees and spent several hours in wild ravings. She then arose and arming herself with a large, sharp carving knife, made her way to the room occupied by her three daughters, aged twelve, ten and eight years, cut the throat of each child and plunged the blade into her own heart. The bodies were discovered yesterday buneighbors, who state discovered yesterday buneighbors, who state that the room was so bespattered with blood as to bear a very strong resemblance to a slaughter house.

Her Babe in Her Arms.

AKRON, O., May 19.—The home of Widow Mary Mooney burned at midnight with four of her children. The widow was awakened by the flames and taking the youngest child, sged two, in her arms leaped from the window, telling her children to jump after her. They did not do so and perished in the flames. Mrs. Mooney and her brother-in-law were badly burned in endeavoring to rescue the children. The brother-in-law will probably die. The child which Mrs. Mooney had in her arms when she leaped from the window is the only one of the family unhurt.

THE EAST TENNESSEE.

Judge Jackson Denies the Petition to Stop the Sale, NASHVILLE, May 19 .- At the conclusion of argument to-day on the petition of George K, Sistare and others against the East Tennessee Virginia and Georgia Railroad company, seek-ing to vacate the decree and postpone the sale of the property, Judge Jackson denied the petition and motion, and ordered the sale to proceed, and announced expressly that the court was unable to see any fraud in the issuance and distribution of the stock and bonds of the company in the action of the directors in relation thereto, or in the con-duct of the Central Trust company, as trustees. The court further stated that it had no doubt of the preference of consols over income bonds, and that as to the Knoxville and Ohio transaction and the Cincinnati and Georgia bonds they were not Cincinnati and Georgia bonds they were not involved in the present suit. The court ordered that the petitioners might become defendants and file an answer in order to prosecute an appeal, if they so desired, after the sale of the property. The sale of main line will take place on May 25, as advertised. The Cincinnati and Georgia division will not be sold, but will be held by a receiver to await the result of litigation.

The local members of the board are;

J. B. Glover, the general superintendent of the road; Judge W. M. Sessions, J. B. Blackwell and N. L. Osborn.

The annual reports of the officers show the road to be in a splendid financial condition. The earnings for the past year are largely in excess of any previous year, which is due in a measure to the immense marble interests along its line which supply stock for the huge mill at Marietta which can't keep up with its orders by running day and night.

can't keep up with its orders by running day and night.

The greatest increase is in the past few mouths which is largely in excess of the corresponding months of last year. The net earnings for the past year more than paid expenses and salaries, and interest on the first mortgage bonds.

The reports of the chief engineer show the road and rolling stock to be in first class condition, and that the road is being put in such a shape that it can be turned into a standard gauge by simply widening the track, all bridges, tressels and fills being made of sufficient width and strength. The bridges on this road are probably the finest in the world, they are of the latest from model and have marble pillars.

The work beyond Ellijay toward Murphy, N. C., is being pushed as rapidly as the difficulties will admit.

is being pushed as rapidly as the difficultles will admit.

Much talk is heard here now of this road being completed to Atlanta to make connection with the Georgia Midland. Those in authority will not say positively whether this will be done at once or not, but all the indications point this way.

The immense marble fields on the line of this road must have more facilities to get to the markets than is furnished by the Western and Atlantic railroad, and those in charge of this road are determined to make a success of their great enterprise.

the city. Mr. Drown's neadquarters are at ancinnati.

Mr. O. E. Jenkins, southeastern traveling agent of the New York Central and Hudson River rafiroad and the Eoston and Albany rafiroad, is visiting Atlanta, Mr. Jenkins's office is in Chicago. During the last few days the eastern passenger business of the Richmond and Danville has been unusually heavy. On Tuesday twenty-seven passengers from Atlanta were ticketed to New York and points beyond.

The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia rallroad has more than two hundred cars ready for the standard gauge. The road will make the change in gauge with so small a delay to traffic that it will hardly be appreciable.

Mr. Chamberlain publishes a letter stingingly criticising the recent action of the London radical council in adopting resolutions favorable to Giadstone's Irish bill.

Mr. Chamberlain says that probably very few of the men who took part in the proceedings have ever read the premier's bills, and that probably hardly one of the gentlemen would have given the measures a moment's consideration if they had been proposed by any person less eminent than Gladstone.

Probably the largest concern of its kind that has grown ap amongst us in the past decade is The Duffy Malt Whisky Company, of Baltimore, Md. The other day the writer met a representative of this house and among other of the interesting questions that came up, was one as to how this Company could, afford to expend such large sums of money in advertising such an excellent brand of whisky, and on which the margin of profit is necessarily

"Well, sir," replied the gentleman, "It is done entirely on the strength of a good article, in the merit and purity of which we have the utmost confidence. This is probably the first instance of the kind in the business of the country where it has paid a business like ours to extensively advertise; its whisky, and we are today the only general advertisers who are are today the only general advertisers who are selling their goods by the car-load and this too, to druggists who have never been known to handle advertised articles in such quantities before.

"Heretofore large newspaper advertising has been confined almost exclusively to patent medicines and other proprietary preparations, on which there is usually a profit of from 200 to 300 per cent (never less) as in the case of so called bitters, for instance, which frequently consist, as analysis has shown, of the cheapest of poisonous kinds of alcohol for a base, (the government allows 30 per cent) the rest of the government allows 30 per cent) the rest of the compound being a few inexpensive flavoring extracts to make it palatable. These decoc-tions have now had their day, and at last the tions have now had their day, and at last the people are beginning to awaken to the fact that if they must have a stimulant it is better to use a straight artic., of the purity of which they are assured, than to drench their stomachs with vile compounds which derange the system. It was with the idea that people would sconer or later come to realize this fact, that we determined to put our whisky on the market under its true name, merit and medicinal use, and although we have received numnal use, and although we have received num-erous propositions from prominent religious papers, and clergymen have written us perso-nal letters stating that they had derived great benefit from its use, and that they would like to recommend it but did not dare do so under the name of whisky, we have steadily held out against any change of title or any disguise of its character, and yet despite the-natural prejudice which exists against the use of liquor in any form, we have received in the past three months over 3,000 unsolicited testimonials from persons who have been cured or benefitted by our whisky, and who out of a pure sense of gratitude are willing that their names be published. You see our whisky is names be published. You see our whisky is distilled by a secret process whereby every trace of fusel oil is climinated, and today we are the discoverers and only manufacturers in the country of an absolutely pure article. There is only one difficulty that we experience, and this comes from a source we least expected, that is, opposition on the part of a few druggists. You would naturally think that they of all others would be the most eager for the sale of pure whisky, but not so. Our whisky, saide from its being absolutely pure, is also one of the best and oldest whiskies, excelled by none, and for this reason is necessarily expensive. Druggists therefore, have very little margin on it as compared with the cheap and poisonous whiskies which many of them have the reputation of handling. It is consequently not profitable to them to s consequently not profitable to them to handle our goods, so that we have been obliged to warn our friends and consumers of this fact, and cause them to insist upon receiving what they want and to be satisfied with nothing but the genuine Duffy's pure malt whisky."

The reporter was surprised to learn that druggists in whose hands life was often at stake, would for mere mercenary motives lend themselves to such opposition, and he went away reasoning that in the future he would always judge a drug store by the character of the whisky it kept.

1Where Was Davis Captured? From the Hawkinsville, Ga., News.

This question is often asked, and we will answer it. He was captured upon lot of land number 51, in the third land district of Irwin county, about one and one-quarter miles north of Irwinville, the county seat. The land was then and is now owned by the Hon, R. W. Clements, clerk of Irwin superior court. Mr. Davis's tent was pitched on the couth side of a creek, and the skirmish between the detach ments of federal calvary took place on the north side of the creek.

Wonderful to Relate.

"For FORTY YEARS have been a victim to CA-TARRH-threefourths of the time a sufferer from EXCRUCIAT-ING PAINS ACROSS MY FOREHEAD and MY NOSTRILS. The discharges were so oftensive that I hesitate to mention it, except for the good it may do some other sufferer. I have spent a young fortune from my hard earnings during my forty years of suffering to obtain relief from the doctors. I have tried patent medicines---every one I could learn offrom the four corners of the earth, with no relief. And AT LAST (57 years of age) have met with a remedy that has cured me entirely-made me a new man. I weighed 128 pounds and now weigh 146. I used thirteen bottles of the medicine, and the only regret I have is that being in the humble walks of life, I may not have influence to prevail on all catarrh sufferers to use what has cured me-

COMPLETE REQUIRES IN ITSELF.

The most convenient and durable fly fan

It is no longer a luxury but a necessity. It is self-acting, winds up like a stem-wind-ing watch—complete in itself—requires no key— —thereby avoiding the great annoyance of looking for a misplaced or lost key.

It drives all flies away by the shadow and movement of the wings while revolving, will run one hour and a half at each winding, and can be rewound at any time by simply using the thumb screw at bottom, or turning base or storn.

It is more durable than the old style Fly-Fan as the journals all have brass bearings. The spindles and wing holders are made of steal, nickle-plated, and the interior works are of the best material, and specially adapted for easy motion and long wear. Sent by Express to any point in the country on receipt of $2.50.

A VOTE of Gordon forty-seven and Bacon four is a pretty good record for Fort Valley, and makes it one of the "solid" towns for

It is to be regretted that Major Bacon is losing his temper. If he is doing as well as his friends say he is, he ought to be in the best of humor. Major Bacon is still hurling the lie around loose, but it doesn't seem to hit anywhere.

THE republican members of the senate reject the nomination of a democratic editor who has written bitter articles during the campaign. The senators are now reading the Madisonian in order to find ground to refuse to confirm Mr. Blackburn as postmaster at Madison, Ga.

THE action of the Macon county democratic executive committee shows who is the popular cardidate and who the "ring" candidate. When the committee met, it found present four Gordon men and three Bacon men. The resolution to elect delegates by primaries was carried by the four Gordon votes against the three Bacon votes. Thus the people of Macon county may thank the Gordon men that they are per mitted to vote. Another Bacon man on the committee would have forced a selection of delegates by the ring.

General Gordon in Augusta, General Gordon's speech in Augusta was the most telling delivered thus far. Accused of resigning an office in time of peace, by a man who did the some thing in face of the enemy, General Gordon spoke with the earnestness of a man who knew that he was right, and with the courage of a man who never fled under fire. Notwithstanding that the meeting was called in General Gordon's interest, and that Major Bacon was there by courtesy, the friends of the latter organized a mob of claquers, whose purpose was to cry General Gordon down. So great became their disorder that even Colonel Black recognized the outrage that was being perpetrated.

The brave words of General Gordon, how ever, will not die in Augusta. They will go ringing into every county in the state. brave men will resent the indignity sought to be imposed on Georgia's greates soldier by Major Bacon's Augusta friends.

Let the Record Show.

Whe Macon Telegraph, putting aside the railroad commission issue, says the most important issue involved in this campaign is the securing of purer methods in poli-

Agreed. Now, which side in this cam paign is standing for purer methods? Gordon's friends did not get up the little court house meeting in Clarke. Bacon's friends are responsible for that remarkable step in the direction of "purifying our political Gordon's friends insist on primaries, so that the people may speak. There is nothing that purifies politics like popular elec tions; nothing that corrupts them like little "ring" meetings. The Gordon men propose to purify by the ballot box. The Bacon men, by the caucus-which is really the purifying methods?

The Gordon men are opposed to snap judgment, and in favor of primaries; the Bacon men hurry everything forward and oppose primaries. And yet the Bacon organs claim that they want purer methods in politics. The public will not be deceived.

A Pretty Scheme.

It is rumored that in addition to trying to move the convention to Augusta, some friends of Major Bacon, on the state committee, will endeavor to have the convention called early in July.

This course will be without excuse or precedent. We cannot recall a gubernatorial convention that ever assembled in Georgia earlier than in August. The last three conventions were held on dates varying from the 8th to the 26th of August.

The last gubernatorial convention was called on the 13th of August. For several weeks prior to the meeting of the state committee, the Macon Telegraph argued against an early convention, and held that the people should have ample time to deliberate before selecting delegates to the conven-

There can be no reason for departing from the party usage at this juncture. Any attempt to put the convention at an earlier date will be considered as an attempt to force judgment in behalf of one of the candidates. We have no fear that the committee will be led into doing anything injurious to the best interests of the democratic party of the

General Gordon and the Railroad

Dr. Felton, writing to the Augusta Chron icle, says that certain developments in the gubernatorial canvass have convinced him "that no patriot can afford to stand aloof while danger threatens the old commonwealth." The democratic people of the state are of the same opinion, and the great majority of them are in favor of General Gordon for governor. The democratic voters of Georgia know precisely where their interests lie and they are not likely to go wrong on so important a question as the selection of a gubernatorial

We observe that Dr. Felton is not alto-gether satisfied with General Gordon's po-sition in regard to the railroad commission. ppily, the doctor's opinion with respect as the knowledge of Major Campbell Wallace, whose later life has been closely identified with the interests of the people in carrying out the railroad commission law. Major Wallace is as well known to the people of this state as Dr. Felton. He is known as one of the purest men that ever held office in the interest of the people. There are few who would question his judgment, and there cannot be found a person in Georgia who would question his integrity. He has devoted himself to carrying out the wishes of the people in connection with the commis-sion, and be declares that he is in favor of Gordon, not only because Gordon will make an acceptable governor, but because Gordon is in favor of the railroad law as it stand and because he is in favor of uphoiding the commission as it stands.

Camphell Wallace is a man in whom people of the state have the utmost co...

Atlanta and the Democratic Conven tion. In behalf of Atlants, we extend the demo-cratic convention to be called today by the executive committee, a hearty invitation to Atlanta.

We submit that no city in Georgia offers such advantages for the holding of a convention or the entertainment of the delegate as Atlanta. It is the most accessible city in the state beyond all comparison. In accommodations it is unequalled. It is the capital city of the state. We can think of no single argument for carrying the convention to Augusta-a city located on the very border of the state-that would not apply with double force to Atlanta.

We do not desire to argue the matter with the committee. The matter is in its hands. and it should be left there. We simply de sire to formally extend to the democratic delegates the same hearty and cordial welcome they have always found when they come to their capital city to hold their conventions.

Major Bacon and the Atlanta Ring.

In Major Bacon's speech at Sparta we find the following:
General Gordon-"What do you think of Mark

Major Bacon-"Well, when a man goes about At lanta, there's no teiling what he will do. When the ring gets pushed it enlarges and takes in new ones to suit its purposes." [Applause.]

This is the first public utterance we have seen from Major Bacon about the "Atlanta ring." He has been frequently quoted as saying in private that there was a terrible ring in Atlanta against him, and his organ has been full of these insinuations and other misrepresentations that require no answer from us. The people of Georgia understand what is the matter with that paper, and its slanders are harmless.

Major Bacon has heretofore said to those who talked with him on this subject that he ought not to be blamed for what injudicious friends would do or say. He has at last thrown off the cover, and comes to the front on his own account.

Without the fear of typhoid fever in our family, we propose to answer him.

Everybody, it appears, who has been opposed to Major Bacon since he began to want to be governor of Georgia, belongs to the "Atlanta ring." There is no other inference to be drawn from the insinuation against that incorruptible old hero, Judge Mark Blandford, who is to be branded with being in the "Atlanta ring" simply because he prefers a gallant comrade who led the last charge at Appomattox, to a tax-in-kind gatherer, who was on this duty according to his own admission (a duty that old men, disabled soldiers and boys could perform), simply because typhoid fever was a dangerous disease. Is this gallant man, Judge Blandford, who swings an empty sleeve as a token of his daring gallantry in one of the best regiments that ever left Georgia, to be stabled with the insinuation that any "ring" ever formed can coerce his big heart and courageous manhood? Such a charge is every man, high or hu who refuses to bow the knee to this new

Now, what has any ring outside of Major Bacon's own personal ring done to disturb the politics of this state for the past five years? Name one thing, one act, except to refuse to support Bacon? Mr. Stephens was denounced as the tool of this alleged "ring" because Major Bacon wanted the office he was running for. This grand old man, who had devoted his life to the people of this state—a man who had stood in front of his own party when he thought it was acting unwisely-who, after years of arduous duty for the public, with not a single thought for himself, in the national councils as the honored representative of this state, wanted to lay aside the laborious duties of a congressional life, and wind up his political career as the governor of a great state he had loved as a father does his child. and said it was the last office he ever expected to fill-this great and good man was padgered and berated by this same cry of being the tool of the "Atlanta ring." At his death, and before his funeral was over, Major Bacon was in the field, and then because it was thought that Judge Boynton, a ganant confederate soldier, who, in the face of bullets and typhoid fever, had bared his breast to the storm, and fell in the front ranks badly wounded, gallantly leading his regiment—and who was, as president of the senate, the legitimate suc-cessor of Governor Stephens, should he permitted to serve out his unexpired term, this was denounced as the work of the Atlanta ring, and he was besmirched all over by Major Bacon's friends with every calumny that could be raked up. Have the people forgotten this?

There was a short lull in the deadlock that was on the convention that first nomi nated Governor McDaniel. It occurred just before the committee of conference retired to try and settle the matter. There were then four candidates before the convention-Major Bacon, Judge Boynton, Major Mc-Daniel and General Cook. What is the history of the moves made on the political chess board at this particular juncture? We will give the history of it, and we are prepared to prove every word we say. Major McDaniel bad written a letter and placed it in the hands of a friend on the committee withdrawing from the race, and told his friend that whenever he found it necessary for the harmony of the convention and the peace of the party, it must be read. This letter was unequivocal and meant just at it said. Ask Judge Albert Erwin if this is not true. what it said.

at that time? He forgot all about this terwas for any port in a storm. He sent for Senator Joseph E. Brown. They met in the comptroller general's office and had a conference. Were there any promises that Senator Brown wanted that were not then made? If so, let them come out. Senator Brown frankly told Major Bacon that he had nothing to ask of any candidate but to deal fairly with him if elected-that he had had little to do with the campaign-that Senator Boynton voted for General Lawton and against him, for United States senator, but that he was satisfied he ought to have the nomination simply as the legal successor of Governor Stephens- and that as between Major Mc-Daniel, and Major Bacon, he preferred Major Bacon, and would not hesitate to tell any of his friends so, but that be was not sufficiently familiar with the men in that convention to be of any service to him. That conference was known to all the leaders in the convention before they separated, and this was understood to be the cause of Major Bacon's defeat by Governor McDaniel, whose letter had been read before the committee. The fact that he had worked up a following by crying out sgainst the Atlanta ring, and was almost in the presence of the convention trying to support from parties whom he had been accus ing privately of being the head and front of this ring-showed members of that convention that there was nothing in his clamor. It disgusted many of his friends, and made the nomination of Governor McDaniel unanimous. Now ask Hon. W. A. Wright, the comptroller general, if we have not stated the facts about this matter fairly. In the face of all this Major Bacon has been writing private letters all over the state, saying he was tricked out of the nomination before the last convention.

To resume: If Governor Stephens was the tool of a ring, let Major Bacon refer to one thing in his administration that he attribntes to the influence of any ring. What did Governor Boynton do that did not meet his approval, other than oppose him for the nomination? What has Governor McDaniel done that shows the influence over him of any ring? Now let us see about the senators. Is Senator Brown legislating to suit the ring? Is Senator Colquitt? If so, certainly something can be pointed out that is wrong. We may differ, and do differ with these representatives on some of their votes. but they are our representatives and have to stand by the record they make. Were they influenced in the distribution of federal offices? Two important offices have been filled in this state besides postmasters. The collector of internal revenue, and the United States marshal. Did the Atlanta ring have anything to do with the appointment of either? If so, why did Major Bacon help Collector Crenshaw make his bond? We have been informed he did this. He is a solid Bacon man now-has appointed Major Bacon's friends almost entirely as his deputies. He came from one of Major Bacon's native counties. With but one or two exceptions his deputies are for Bacon, or neutral. Major Bacon was in favor of the appointment of Marshal Nelms, and has told him so, and has asked and said he expects his support for governor. Did he ever file any charges or objection against his appointment as marshal? If so, when and where? If the ring had anything to do with making this appointment, why did he not come to the front and put the people on notice of the fact, and stamp it out?

The truth is, we never hear of the "Atlanta ring" until Major Bacon is pressing his undefined claim for governor. Then we hear of it everywhere. If any "ring" had worked as he and his friends have worked in all the counties of this state, trying to pull down some worthy man by slan-der and abuse, that he might rise on his downfall—if any ring in the state had called packed conventions in counties that had been fixed months and weeks before the executive committee of the party had assembled to call a convention, for the purpose of booming their candidate for governor, and were doing all they could to prevent a fair and full expression of the desires of the people as to who should be their candidate, it would be a ring that ought to be condemned by every good citiizen of the state. And it will be. It has come to a sad pass in Georgia if it requires the work of any kind of a "ring" to elect General John B. Gordon, who made the most splendid record made by a confederate soldier outside of Virginia, in the days of typhoid fever, blood and carnage, or if she will elect over him for any office he wants a man who held a fat office of tax-gatherer in those days, and since then has been the leading attorney of the richest railroad corporations in Georgia and Chicago. It is a slander on the people of this state to charge that they had to be led by any ring to honor Mr. Stephens, the great statesman of Georgia, whom the people always honored, and whose memory they love to honor now, or to honor Governor McDaniel. Give the people a chance to vote, and let the verdict be made on the testimony. Let us have no ex parte trials before picked men in the county towns, who have received favors as members of the legislature that makes it necessary to repeat the slander of their bosses, and wear their colors year in and year out to the state conventions to compensate for those favors; who are willing to deny anybody the right, even their own local candidates, to run for governor, so great is the burden of their obligations.

What ring is it that has been working assiduously around the capitol here promising to retain certain men in office, and cajoling and persuading these officers that Major Ba con was dead sure to be the next governor, and that it was all fixed months before the executive committee meets to call a convention, so the people could express some preference. Was it the "Atlanta ring?" If so, let the people stamp it out. What ring is it that has been arguing and persuading and badgering members of this executive committee to have the convention held in Augusta, on one side of the state, so that men in the northern, western and southwestern parts of the state will be put to the trouble and expense of traveling twice the distance, merely to serve the pur-pose of this ring? If it is the Atlanta ring, we say, stamp it out. What ring is opposed to the people meet-ing fairly and quietly in their counties-holding primaries, so every man, whether he has made a promise or not, can express his to this particular issue is not so important Now what was Major Bacon doing choice for a candidate? If it is the "Atlanta ring," stamp it out. If there is any ring trying to perpetrate these wrongs, merely to serve an individual, in the name of the dem-ocratic party, and for the sake of harmony in the future, let it be denounced and de feated.

The many friends of Mr. N. P. T. Finch will be glad to learn that it is his intention to return to Atlanta and engage in an impor-tant business enterprise.

During the summer he will travel with his family, through the north and west, seeking health and recreation.

Mr. Finch, for long years, has been an able and valued member of THE CONSTITU-TION's editorial staff, and, until a recent date, one of the owners of the paper. His late associates, in common with the community at large, feel it to be a matter for constulation that Atlanta is not to lose him. Mr. Finch, during his residence here, has thoroughly identified himself with our people, and his pride in our city, and firm confidence in its rapid growth and increasing prosperity have never wavered. For the present, we wish Mr. Finch and his fellow tourists a pleasant trip and a safe return.

THE Macon Telegraph suggests that Dr. Felton may be prevailed on to meet ex-Governor James M. Smith on the stump in north Georgia. Well, the old war-horse would like othing better than that. He would no doubt be glad to accommodate the doctor.

A BACON organ says: "We knew that primary elections were impracticable as soon as they were suggested." So we should suppose. They are impracticable for the Bacon ring, but not for the democratic voters.

"GATH's" post mortem abuse of George H Butler is explained. It seems that on one occasion, when George was asked to name the three greatest liars in America, he replied: "Eli Perkins is one and George Alfred Towns end is the other two." It is said that "Gath has never forgotten or forgiven this contribution to the truth of history.

THE Macon Telegraph says the Atlanta ring is the issue in this campaign. Very well. Let the democratic voters settle the matter. The Bacon ring should not be afraid of the people. MR. BACON says: "If I succeed, it will be the success of the people." If this is the case why not give the people a chance to let their voice be heard in the matter? By all means give the democratic voters of the state a chance to express their will.

Ir there had been a primary election in Lee, the vote for Gordon would have been much larger. In all parts of the state the democrat ic masses are for him.

THE Hon. Patrick Walsh remarks in his paper that "THE CONSTITUTION is very much alarmed at the outlook in the state." dently some Bacon man has been stuffing this esteemed statesman.

A PRIMARY election would carry Clarke county for Gordon overwhelmingly. A keen appreciation of the situation causes Statesman Walsh, of the Augusta Chronicle, to write an editorial on the subject, in which we can observe the trace of bitter tears.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 18.—[Special.]—What means well for Alabama is the appearance in Birmingham of the Samuel Thomas party, of Pennsylvania, who have made large investments near the city, and intend to erect extensive iron near the city, and intend to erect extensive iron works. The company was the first to see the value of ore lands in the state, and purchased at a lov price a large plat situated near the city. From time to time the members of the company have visited the south, only to return home without de veloping their iron ore. The company is known in this state as the Pioneer Manufacturing company. ECHOES FROM THE PROPIE. Seven Big Things.

Reader, Ocala, Fla.: Please name the seven biggest things in the world. We don't know exactly what you want, but we can give you a variety. The largest theater in the world is the new opera house in Paris. It covers hearly three acres of ground; its cubic mass is ,287,000 feet : it cost about 100,000,000 francs.

The largest suspension bridge is the one between New York City and Brooklyn; the length of the main span is 1,595 feet six inches; the entire length of the bridge is 5,980 feet.

The loftiest active volcano is Popocatapelt— "smoking mountain"—thirty-five miles southwest of Puebla, Mexico; it is 17,748 feet above the sea level, and has a crater three miles in circumfer ence and I,000 feet deep.

The longest span of wire in the world is used for a telegrah in India over the river Kistnah, be-tween Bezorah and Sectynagrum. It is more than 6,000 feet in length and is 1,200 feet high.

The largest ship in the world is the Great Eastern. She is 650 feet long, 83 feet broad and 60 feet deep, being 28,627 tons burden, 18,915 gross and 13,344 net register. She was built at Mill-wall-on-the-Thames and was launched January 21, 1857.

The largest body of fresh water on the globe is Lake Superior, 400 miles long, 160 wide at its greatest breadth, and having an area of 22,000 square miles. Its mean depth is 900 feet, and its greatest depth is said to be about 200 fathoms. Its surface is about 635 feet above the level of the sea. The biggest cavern is the Mammoth Cave, in Edmonson county, Kentucky. It is near the Green river, about six miles from Cave City and twenty-eight from Bowling Green. The cave consists of a succession of fregular chambers, some of which are large, situated on different levels, ome of these are traversed by navigable branches of the subterranean Echo river. Blind fish are found in its waters.

Freckles.
School Girl, La Grange Ga.: What will remove reckles?

Here are several popular remedies:

1. Muriat of ammonia, one drachm; cologne water, two drachms; distilled water, seven ounces; mix and use as a wash.

2. Three grains of borax in five drachms each of cosewater and orange-flower water. Apply every night and allow to dry.

3. A physician furnishes the following: Citric acid, one drachm; glycerine, four ounces; rose-water, four ounces; mix and wash the face every night before retiring.

The foregoing are not given with any promise that they will cause freekles to disappear entirely. The most that they will do, particularly if the splotches are pronounced in color, is to bleach them out partially and render them indistinct.

Five weeks ago we were very nearly out of provisions and Isent my son, twenty-two years of age, to Grayson to get some provisions. We waited and waited for his return, but he did not come. After a while the children got sick, and one by one the little ones died. My husband was the last one to go, he dying last night." The Grummers had a lunch with them, and giving it to the woman, went out to find help. Of course your hooks must be stout, and when all is ready, hook on a good-sized perch or roach, always hook under the back fin; just above the spinal column if you want them to live long and play nicely, and then start around throwing out a gourd every forty or fifty feet. By the time your circle is completed, you will see two or three gourds bobbling about right lively, and if you can get there ahead of the alligators you will nificent sport, and you may keep it up until you are tired. The old rounder tilted his chair back and observed, "Well, gentlemen, if I were to state my preference, I would say bobbing for red finned pike was the rarest sport. They don't do much till more genuine amusement in a pike than any I ever tried. And they'll bite to anything. Just choose a lazy, hot day, and find a little crooked stream with lots of deep pools and eddies in bends, and go down about ten o'clock in the day. Get a stout hook with a long shank and light inker, and shorten your line until you can reach the little black pools where the vines and bushes ang lowest. Almost any sort of bait will do to start with, a few "sawyers" or something of the ort. You will catch one after a while, and then you are all right. Slice off a large piece of the white belly, with the little short red fins attac insert your hook in the end of it, and then troll it around, either skimming the surface or bobbling it along about a foot deep, as suits the humor of the fish. There is no sport so exciting, and the fish are food fit for a king. About two o'clock they will cease rising, but by that time you will have had sport enough for one day. Plenty of hooks and a steady hand and your luck is assured in pike fishing." "Speaking of game fish," remarked the judge as "Did you ever hear how old John Knight said his father came to Georgia?" remarked the judge, parenthetically, "Old John said that his fa'her lived in the backwoods of North Carolina, and the first two-horse wagon he ever saw he took after it. He became so absorbed in the question of how far it would run before the big wheels overtook the little ones that he followed it clear to Augusta, Georgia, before he gave out and had to stop. He did'nt know the way back and had to stay." This sarcasm had its effect, but the old counder must be heard. Casting a meditative glance toward where the sun had gone down, he began: "Well, gentlemen, I had a little experience of my own, once. I went down on the Chat-tahoochee river, in Decatur county, to visit an old friend. He had often told me of the splendid fish ing there, and I was anxious to try it. in the evening when I got there, and I retired early, so as to be ready for the fun next day. I asked how far it was to the creek, and they told me it was only a few hundred yards, just beyond the fence. By light, next morning, I was up, and secured a good tackle and a few sawyers, I started off toward the creek. The fog was so heavy, for it was wood's burning time, that I could not see any distance ahead of me, and so I groped my way as best I could across the little clearing. Reaching the fence I climbed over, and picking my way carefully, for I did not want to fall in the creek, I proceeded slowly down the slope until I thought I must be near the water's edge. Eaiting my hook I threw it forward, and just about time enough for it to strike the water ! felt a pull, and with a jerk I brought in a fine fel low. For ten minutes I stood there and pulled them in, and then, fearing that I would spoil one day's sport, I regretfully retired, and by accident I reached the house through the fog. After breakfast the fog lifted and we got ready for a day's enjoyment. You may imagine my sur prise, when, on going to the place where I had caught so many early in the morning, I found that it was a full hundred yards from the bank of tha creek. THE CATHOLIC YOUNG MEN. Meeting of the Twelfth Annual Session of the PHILADELPHIA, May 19,—The Catholic Young Men's National union of the United States began its twelfth annual convention in the academy of music today. Before beginning business two hundred and fifty delegates attended solemn high mass at the cathedral. Rev. President Father James H. Mitchell, of Brocklyn N. V. capaced the convention with Mayor Smith welcomed the delegates on behalf of the city.

After the appointment of a committee on credentials and the reading of reports from several societies, a recess was taken until the afternoon, when the convention reassembled. The, president and secretary presented their reports. The latter shows an increase of nearly sixty per cent in the number of societies. A committee of three, consisting of Rev. E. M. Tierney, of Richmond, W. P. Brenrock, of Albany and H. S. Brady, of thiscity, was appointed to prepare an address to the pope, and also to forward him a telegram relative to the meeting of the convention.

THROUGH THE BRAIN.

Frank Sheppard, a reputable and much respected colored man, was brutally murdered in his store, No. 285 Fort street, night before

The murder was the most fiendish and ter-

The murder was the most fieudish and terrible that has been enacted in Fulton county since the DeFoor tragedy of '78.

Frank Sheppard was a young negro man, about thirty years of age. He was fairly educated and had a good idea of business. Some three years ago, with only a few dollars in pocket and a wife to support, Sheppard left his father's home in LaGrange where he had been reared, and came to Atlanta. He was sober and industrious, and soon after reaching the city sought some of the wholesale grocers to whom he presented and from whom he asked for credit. Sheppard's style was that of an honest negro who knew and appreciated his position as a negro. He found no trouble in making friends among the wholesale merchants, and in less than six months after reaching Atlanta he had a nice stock of family groceries shelved in a small building on Fort street, near Baker. His store was remote from other husiness houses, but was remote from other business houses, but he attended strictly to his business and in a short while succeeded in building up a nice trade in his neighborhood. He was a room in the rear of the store. Then, in a short while he entered a suit for divorce, and settled down to business again. Sheppard seemed to care little for company, and seldom left the building in which HE ATE, SLEPT AND SOLD GOODS.
LETTERS OF RECOMMENDATION,

HE ATE, SLEPT AND SOLD GOODS.
Here he led an almost isolated life. He was regular in his habits and usually closed his store about 8 o'clock in the evening and opened it about sunrise in the morning.
On Tuesday night Sheppard dismissed his clerk, a small negro boy named Walter King, about 7 o'clock. He was then standing behind the standing behi about 7 o'clock. He was then standing behind the counter arranging some goods, which he had just purchased, on the shelves. Soon after the boy left two negro men who live in the neighborhood entered the store and began talking with Sheppard. The three men conversed until about half-past S, when they left. As the men walked out of the door SHEPPARD FOLLOWED THEM, and then closed it, The men went to their homes and Sheppard began preparing to retire. But as each one of the trio followed the inclination of his own mind, neither one had any idea of the terrible tragedy that was brewing. About nine clock the people living in the neighborhood of the store heard distinctly a pistol shot. The night was dark and cloudy and the rain was falling, but still the shot appears to have been universally heard, and a pears to have been universally heard, and a half a dozen persons went to their front doors, but only one saw any person out. Sam Bough, living at 201 Baker street, saw a man moving rapidly up the street. The man had on a white hat and was moving rapidly, but beyond this Bough observed nothing, and in a short time everybody in the locality was SLEEPING, LITTLE DREAMING of the terrible work that pistol report had twice and receiving no response she started to leave. Just as she reached the door, however, she met Walter King, who was reporting for his day's work. The instant the girl saw the boy she said:

"I want some sugar, but there ain't any one here to wait on me."

"That's funny," said the boy, "and the door open, too. Come back, and I'll wait on you."

open, too. Come back, and I'll wait on you."

THE DEAD BODY FOUND.

Together the two stepped into the store.
The girl walked up to the counter, while the boy stepped behind it. The lights were still burning in the store, and somewhat astonished at the unusual occurrence, the boy looked well about him as he was walking. Just as he stepped behind the counter the boy noticed Sheppard reclining in the corner at the rear end of the counter. The man was on his feet, but he was not sitting, neither was he stand-ing. His body was crouched down just enough to hide him behind the counter. The boy to hide him behind the counter. The boy stopped still the instant his eyes fell upon the man and called out:

"Is that you, Mr. Sheppard?"
Sheppard made no response to the question, and the boy approached him. When within a foot of the man the boy saw her husband had been killed and repeatedly asserted:

"He has been murdered! I know he has been murdered!"

Finally, the coroner, who had been notified, arrived. With him were the county physician and a jury of inquest. The jury was empaneled and then the body was removed from its crouching position and laid upon the floor. Dr. Boring quickly found a large bullet hole just behind the left ear and then after a thorough examination discovered to bullet on the right side of the head just under the skin near the temple. The bullet had passed entirely through the head,

TEARING THE BRAIN TO PIECES and causing instant death. The body, when found, was directly under the shelf on which the cigars were stored, and from the nature of the wound it is believed that the murderer walked up to the counter and asked for a cigar; then, when Sheppard turned to reach for the cigars, the left side of his headwas next to the assassin and offered a good spot for the ball which he sent into it with unerring aim. The jury examined a great many witnesses, but could ascertain nothing indicating who was guilty of the murder. The two men who were last with Sheppard testified that they heard the pistol shot, as did a dozen others. Then Bough stated that he had seen the man run away, but nothing else could be ascertained. Sheppard's wife was present and was placed on the stand. She gave her version of the separation and claimed that it was her husband's fault.

In the store-room Sheppard kept a trunk in which he deposited his money. This trunk was securely locked and the lock had not been touched, but when the trunk was opened by the coroner no money was found in it. In Sheppard's pocket about six dollars were found. None of the stock had been disturbed and if the murderer had done the deed for the sake of what he would get he was frightened away before getting anything. Sheppard, when last seen alive, had on a heavy overcoat, and when found dead this coat was still around his body with a builet hole through the collar. His hat was found in the storeroom and his bed had not been disturbed.

After the jury had declared the death a room and his bed had not been disturbed.

After the jury had declared the death is willful munder, Sheppard's wife laid claim to the stock of goods, but Coroner Haynes declared to the stock of goods, but Coroner Haynes de clined to turn it over to her, and as the keys could not be found anywhere, nailed the place up and will hold it subject to the orders of Sheppard's creditors and Ordinary Calhoun.

THE LAWS AGAINST CONSPIRACY. A Judge Instructs a Jury as to What Constitutes the Offense.

A Judge Instructs a Jury as to What Constitutes the Offense.

Milwaukee, May 19.—The charge given by Judge Mallory today to the grand jury drawn to consider a score of cases against alleged instigators or ex-participants in the recent labor riots in this city is commended by the public in general. After charging the jury, Judge Mallory says:

No person should be indicted for the commission of any offense unless such person was, in some way, by word or act, connected with its commission. It is not necessary that a person should have actually participated in the commission of an unlawful or criminal act to make him responsible for it. But every person who counsels, hires, procures or incites others to the commission of any unlawful or criminal act is equally guilty with those who actually perpetrated the act, though such person may not have been presented at the time of the commission of the offense. An agreement between two or more persons wrongfully to injure or prejudice a third person or any body of men, as for instance, a combination to injure a man in his trade or profession, is conspiracy in our mure persons conspire together for the purpose of boycotting a man with intent to injure of destroy his business, they may be indicted for conspiracy. In view of the labor troubles throughout the country, I think it will be well for the grand jury to investigate, fully and carefully, the nature and character of labor, organizations which exist in the midst of us, with a view of ascertaining whether anything in any of their constitutions or in any oath which any officer or member to resort to violence or other unlawful means for the purpose of accomplishing the objects sought to be attained. Any organization, whose officers and members are so bound, is an unlawful organization and liable to indictment. A conspiracy to prevent, by means of threats or other unlawful means for the purpose of accomplishing the objects ought to be attained. Any organization having for its object the accomplishment of such purpose by such ing for its object the accomplishment of such purpose by such means is inlawful. I believe a vast majority of the people who come to this country from foreign lands are attracted by our free institutions, and come for the honest purpose of accepting and sustaining them, and are here for the purpose of making peaceable homes for their children. But, unfortunately for their cause of good government and peace of society, persons of another class, comparatively few in numeers but of unbulent, irregular and victious temper, have settled in different states of our union and commenced from the moment they landed upon our shores to cry out against our government, and to advocate anarchy. These men, by by their pernicious doctrines, have poiscated the minds of large numbers of our once contented and prosperons laboring people to an alarming extent — to the extent of causing riot and bloodshed—as well as the general derangement of the business of the country, honest laborers suffering more than any other class of our people. Men who, by incendiary speeches and wild harangues, cause a breach of the peace must be held to a strict accountability. Our constitution does not protect apy such freedom of speech. Our people have tolerated the reckless and criminal conduct of the anarchists and demagogues quite too long.

The condition of the wages class of that day

The condition of the wages class of that day may be well examined; it is full of instruction for social agitators. In the great cities unskilled workmen were hired by the day, bought their own food, and found their own lodgings. But in the country, on the farms, or wherever a hand was employed on some public work, they were fed and lodged by the employer and given a few dollars a month. On the Pennsylvania canals the diggers ate the coarsest diet, were housed in the radest sheds, and paid $6 a month from May to November, and $6 a month from November to May. Hod-carriers and mortar-mixers, diggers and choppers, who, from 1798 to 1800, labored on the public buildings and cut the streets and areaues of Washington city, received $70 a year, or it they wished, $60 for all the work they could perform from March 1st to December 20th. The hours of work were invariably from sunrise to sunset. Wages at Albany and New York were three shillings, or, as money then went, 40 cents a day; at Lancaster, $8 to $10 a month; elsewhere in Pennsylvania workmen were content with $6 in summer and $5 in winter, $4t Baltimore men were glad to be hired at 18 peffice a day. None, by the month, asked more than $6. At Fredericksburg the price of labor was from $5 to $7. In Virginia, white men employed by the year were given £15 currency; slaves, when hired, were clothed and their masters paid £1 a month. A pound Virginia money was, in federal money, $3.38. The average rate of wages the land over was, therefore, $55 a year, with food and, perhaps, lodging, Out of this small sum the workman must, with his wife's help, maintain his family.

The reporter induced the Hon. DuPont Guerry to give his opinion as to the place for the convention and the time for holding it.

"What do you think of the proposed change of place of holding the convention from Atlanta to Augusta?" was asked.

"I do not think it would be right. Augusta is too inaccessible to the most of the people. If any change should be made at all, the convention ought to be held in Macon, as that is about as conought to be held in Macon, as that is about as co veniently reached as Atlanta. I do not think, however, that any change in the well established custom of the party ought to be made in the midst of a canvass. It might not be a bad idea for the com-of a canvass, it night those a base several central cities as places for holding conventions for the future, when such changes couldn't have reference to candidates already in the field."

"What do you think about the time of holding the convention?"
"The custom of the party ought to be followed in this respect also. I am opposed to precipitating the convention. The people ought to have full opportunity to make up their minds and to vote; and to bring out other candidates if they desire to. The committee ought to act with reference to this endentirely and not with reference to any effect on the one candidate or the other."

PROGRESS OF THE CAMPAIGN.

The recent statement in this column that both papers in Fort Gaines were in favor of Major Bacon happens to be an error. The Fort Gaines Tribune will this week come out in favor of General Gordon the standard which always could be found where the battle raged hottest. In Fort Gaines the people are six to one for Gordon; in the county—well, there are old soldiers and the sons of old soldiers there who never go back on an old commander.
The people will have a public demonstration next

A LaGrange letter says:

"The Bacon men do not want the primaries. They say all that is necessary is for a few of the wise heads to meet in the courthouse and name the delegates; but the Gordon men think differently and say others besides politicians should have a voice in the affairs of government. When the Bacon men speak of the people, they say 'd—n the people; they don't know what they want.'"

"An Old Soldier of the Western Army," writing from Dallas, makes the following request: "Please send by freight or express, some few Bacon men, we can see what they look like. Paulding is 'art and hand for Gordon."

The Floyd county executive committee will The Floyd county executive committee will meet on the 22d.

The Douglasville Star says:

We know the people in this section prefer General Gordon to any and all men who have been spoken of for governor. The cut-and-dried courthouse delegations that have been named for Bacon in a few too previous counties will not be tolerated by the democracy of Douglas. Bacon is, no doubt, as good a democrat as Gordon, but the general has such a place in the hearts of the people in this bailiwick that they will see that he is not greased out of the delegation from Douglas with anybody's Bacon. The sentiment all over this county is to have primary elections for delegates and let those who are directly interested in having a good state government express their choice for governor through the ballot box instead of leaving the matter in the hands of courthouse tricksters.

Mr. J. H. Strickland, of Fairburn, polled the street Tuesday, taking the first thirty white men street Tuesday, taking the first thirty white men he came to, resulting 28 for Gordon and 2 for Ba-con. A surveying party in the county, numbering thirteen, was also polled, and 11 were for Gordon and 2 for Bacon.

The Cartersville American must have had Major Bacon in mind when it wrote: "When a man falls down, his temper generally rises before he does," An encouraging sign of the times is the statement by the Covington Star that a large number of Bacon men will go from Newton county to hear General Gordon in Conyers. "While the lamp heldrent to hurn," etc. holds out to burn," etc.

I want people to know that I so."

The Monroe Advertiser asserts that "primary elections for nomination of candidates in Monroe

General Gordon's friends throughout the state who are auxious to hear him speak should bear with the committee that is in charge of his appointments. The demand on his time is overwhelming, and a committee of his friends has filled appointments up to the first Tuesday in June in such a way as to make a beginning on what will be a comprehensive canvassof the state, if time is permitted before the calling of the convention. General Gordon has spoken once every day, and occasionally twice a day since he entered the race, and will continue to do this.

In the meantime those communities that have forwarded petitions to him, understand that it is his desire, and the desire of his friends, to have him speak in every community in Georgia that he can possibly reach, and he will fill those appointments which seem in the judgment of his friends to bring him face to face with the greatest number of people.

THAT THE MAN WAS DEAD.

This frightened him and with a yell and a bound he reached the sidewalk. In a few seconds the alarm had gone through that entire section of the city and a hundred people were present. No one, however, touched the dead man. Even the wife of Sheppard, who was present, did not touch him. Sheppard had been known as a sickly man, and every one present, with a single exception, believed that he died of heart disease. No one had an idea that he had been shot. There was no blood on the floor, and the position in which the dead man was reclining prevented those about from seeing the ugly wound in the back of the head. Patrolman Moss was assigned to the duty of maintaining order about the building until the coroner could arrive. Sheppard's wife wanted the body removed and wanted to examine the house, but Patrolman Moss declined to allow her to have her wishes gratified. She alone of all present believed that her husband had been killed and repeatedly asserted:

NEW YORK STOCKS. Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The features of today's narket were the dealings in Western Union and ouisville and Nashville. Western Union was heavy throughout the morning, the cause of which was rumored to be a decision in the Goodsell suit. There was considerable talk afloat in regard to Louisville and Nashville, but the stock was remarkably steady all day, and closed with a small advance. The general market opened heavy in the morning, a majority of the active list showing de-clines of ½ to ½ per cent. Jersey Central, Omaha and Northwest, however, were each up ½ per cent. There was some heaviness apparent in the early trading, and declines of small fractions were made trading, and declines of small fractions were made before il a.m. The market then continued dull and featureless, although a firm tone prevailed until near the close. Prices shaded off a fraction in the lest hour, and the market closed rather heavy, near last night s final prices. The net re-sult of the day's operations is an equal division between small gains and equally small losses, the difference in no case is more than ½ per cent either way. report on cotton futures today, say: The short in-terest in the old crop continued anxious, and with a liberall-pot business covering was lively. Prices were quite buoyant, and an advance of 8@10 points retained good support up to the close. Less cheerful crop accounts later in the day and fair support from abroad assisted the upward turn, while the movements of some of the principal operators re-vived the impression of an active market on the balance of the crop year. The new crop sympa-thized with the improving tone to some extent, but as a rule continued to be handled with caution.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

pecial to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, May 19—The starting price for June wheat today was 74/2c, which proved to be the low-est figure of the 4ay. A rally to 75c followed, after which the market reacted to 74%c, then rose to while the market reacted to 1/2-t, then hose to 75½ c on good buying occasioned by a statement that a large quantity had been taken at New York for export, fell off and closed at 751-16c. In the afternoon the market closed a shade easier. There were some rumors of crop damages during the day, and vessel room was taken here for 118,000 bushes. There was free buying of corn during the early hours, advancing %c, but free offerings caused a break in values. Oats ruled a shade firmer.

good work. Present capacity 7,300 yards a day of heavy sheetings and shirtings, three yards to the pound.

The operatives' houses and improvements generally in excellent condition, labor abundant, lands elevated and location of property unsurpassed for health, convenience and economical production—free from the burden of municipal taxes paid by all the other Columbus mills, yet within three miles of the city of Columbus and three quarters of a mile of Columbus and Rome railroad. The water power is the finest in the south, controlling and embracing the whole bed of the Chattahoochee river for the distance of about one mile along the lands of the company, said lands extending along its banks upon the Georgia and Alabama sides of the river. Only a small portion of the water power is required and utilized in running the present mill and the natural falls in the river render but a simple inexpensive dam of logs and plank necessary. This magnificent water power is easily controlled and has a fall of forty-two and a half (42\%) feet within three-quarters (\%) of a mile. With a comparatively small expenditure upon a new dam, 125,000 (one hundred and twenty-five thousand) spindles with looms in proportion can be driven by this water power. Capital for the erection of additional mills and utilization of the immense power now wasted, is all that is needed to make this property the site of a prosperous and populous manufacturing village. The personal inspection of capitalists is invited. Full and satisfactory details will be furnished on application,

HE LOST THREE FINGERS.—Willis Owens, an East Tennessee yard conductor, lost three fingers off the left hand, yesterday. Conductor Owens was trying to make a coupling and, by not watching carefully, allowed the two bumpers to come together with his fingers between them. The fingers were mashed off.

REWARD OFFERED. — Governor McDaniel yesterday offered a reward of $100 for the capture of Housten Siermons, colored. Siermons was convicted of burglary in the superior court of Brooks county and sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary. He escaped before his time of imprisonment was well begun.

THE REHEARSALS.—The Cinderella children The Rehearsals.—The Cinderella children will rehearse at the Gate City Guard armory at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Benton, the manager, has secured the armory, as it is more conveniently and centrally located. The lady is making rapid progress in organizing the troupe, and the children are taking great interest.

HIS SON DEAD.—H. W. Sessions was summoned by telegram yesterday to attend the funeral of his son, H. R. Sessions, of East Berlin, Conn., who died of typhoid pneumonia very suddenly on the 18th, at the age of 22. He leaves with the kind sympathy of all his new made friends in his adopted city and

in Atlanta yesterday as was expected. The argument in the case of the Western and Atlantic railroad company vs. Campbell Wallace, L. N. Trammell and Alex. S. Erwin, railroad commissioners of Georgia, will be heard by Judge Don. A. Pardee on the 10th of June,

THE TRAINS BEHIND .-- The Richmond and Danville passenger train due in Atlanta yes-terday at 12:40 p. m., and the one due last night at 9:40 did not reach the city at all. Both trains were delayed by a washout near Salisbury. N. C. The trains had not reached Charlotte up to three o'clock this morning. It not known yet when they will arrive in

A MISTAKE.—A mistake crept into the notice of Dr. J. M. Johnson's death. His son-in-least simon B. Buckner, of Kentucky. He wlives in California and is adjutant generof that state. His other daughter was the ife of a nephew to General Albert Sidney jason, Major J. S. Byers, who died in Anesville, Ga., a few years ago.

THE WORK OF THE LIGHTNING .- During THE WORK OF THE LIGHTNING.—During as thunder storm day before yesterday evening late, the residence of Mr. Purcell, on Gilmer street, was struck by lightning, and the reof was torn almost completely off. The lightning struck the house crosswise and scattered shingles considerably. The house was almost a new one. The occupants were greatly shocked and very much scared. An old peachtree in Mr. M. M. White's yard on Frazier street, was shattered by the lightning.

THEY WILL LEAVE TODAY.—Mr. Henry T. McDaniel, the civil engineer, with his party of twenty, will leave for Montana today. Mr. McDaniel intended leaving yesterday, but the heavy rains destroyed the railroad schedules, and he thought better to delay his departure one day. Mr. McDaniel will make a survey of the public lands in the territorry near Helens, the capital. There is something over 700,000 acres to be surveyed, and there will be several townships laid out near the capital of the territory.

A HEAVY SUIT.—Otto Laist, for himself and other creditors, brings his bill in equity against the Georgia chemical and mining company and against T. M. Hinkle, the trustee of said corporation, for the holders of the first mortgage bonds. In March, 1882, the Georgia chemical and mining company made a deed of trust to said Hinkle, as trustee, to secure there mortgage bonds. Said suit claims that $100,000 in cash was paid in, all of which has been expended and the company continuously losing money. In March, 1882, they provided for the issue of $100,000 in bonds, and claims that $87,500 were actually issued and sold, and that he, Laist, holds thirty-one of said bonds and interest on same, amounting to $17,360, and, as the company has failed to pay the interest on same, he prays for an injunction and the appointment of a reaciver. Paul Romare was appointed temporary receiver and is now in possession of all the property. The hearing for a permanent receiver and for permanent injunction is set for a hearing before Judge Marshall J. Clarke, judge superior court, Atlanta circuit, May 29, 1886.

The Southwestern Tariff.—The Southwestern Tariff association recommend yesterday morning in the Kimball house ball room. President Knowles occupied the chair and several new companies responded to the roll call by Secretary Peters. The attendance was much larger than on the first day—the galleries being well filled with ladies. The journal of Tuesday's session was read and approved. The committee on constitution and by-laws presented a report stating that the work had been done. With the report the committee handed in copies of the work which was distributed's among the members present. The committee having is hand the unsettled condition of insurance affairs in North Carolina referred to by the president in his address, made a report suggesting a remedy. In the report the committee recommended that the marks and numbers on cotton be not recorded on policy and that the value per bale be limited. The report, by motion, was recommitted. Major Mims, chair man of the committee on the secretary's work, submitted a report, in which Secretary Peter's work was highly complimented for his thoroughness and efficiency. The committee recommended the continuance of the monthly reports made by the secretary. The report was made the special order for 4 p. m. Mr. Patillo made a motion that oils shall not be less than 120° Faherenheit jest. The local insurance members of the association are arranging a banquet for the visiting members. The banquet will take place either tonight or tomorrow night.

as the Observer has to Say About it—Damage in the City, on the Railroads and in the Country— Other Points of Interest About the Storm —News of the Coming Weather,

"An April shower, eh?" remarked the weather reporter as he walked into the signal office yesterday evening dripping with rain.
"Yes," said the weather man," and the trouble is we don't know when it will let up. The indications are not very favorable."
"What has been the rainfall?"
"About 4:96."

"Is the rain pretty general?"

"Heard from the pigeons you started off to "Not a word. I fear they were overtaken by the storm, but I hope not."

CHATTAHOOCHEE RIVER.

Last night at 10 o'clock the superintendent of the Chattahoochee River Brick company, was asked the condition of things at the river. "The river is rising rapidly," he replied. "Ont of its banks?"

"Well, I should say so. At the brick yard the entire bottoms are flooded.
"Has there been much damage?"

"Yes, considerable. Some of the farmers will have to replant, as the land is so badly washed. Fences are washed away and other damage done. If it does not rain any more the river will fall tomorrow."

THE DAMAGE ON THE RAILEOADS.

THE DAMAGE ON THE RAILROADS. As a general thing, the railroads have suffered but little damage by the heavy rains of Tuesday and Wednesday.

At a late hour last night, the Western and Atlantic, the Georgia, the Central, the Atlanta and West Point, the East Tenuessee, Virginia and Georgia, and the Georgia Pacific were reported in good order.

on the Richmond and Danville a washout was reported north of Charlotte. The southbound train, due yesterday at 12:40 p. m., did not arrive until after 11 o'clock last night.

The Atlanta and Charlotte division was re-ported in good order, but conductors and engineers were directed to run slewly and care-

THE DAMAGE IN THE CITY.

The rains Tuesday night caused several of the sewers to overflow, and considerable damage ensued. The Bell street sewer where it goes under Wheat street, could not carry off the water, and the lots on the south side of the street were flooded. Just at this point the land is low, and in a very short time the water was found to the street were flooded. land is low, and in a very short time the water was four feet deep. It continued to rise during the night, and yesterday morning was back up to Fort street. Gardens and yards on both sides of the old branch were ruined. George Yarbrough, the barber, lost three fine hens and about sixty eggs, while another resident had over a hundred dollars' worth of shrubbery washed up. The water did not subside until the sewer carried it away. At one time the water extended entirely across Wheat street and was over the street car track.

The lower end of Bell street was washed out.

The Funeral Service Yesterday-Resolutions Adopted.

The funeral of Dr. J. M. Johnson was held from St. Luke cathedral yesterday afternoon at four o'clock. at four o'clock.

The services were conducted by Rev. C: M. Beckwith, assisted by Rev. Dr. Bielby. Mr. Beckwith's remarks were beautiful and appropriate, and tears filled the eyes of many as he alluded to the many noble traits of character of the decessed. of the deceased.

The following members of the medical fraternity acted as pall bearers:

Dr. A. J. Woodward,
Dr. F. J. Arbeely,
Dr. R. B. Riddy,
And the following as an escort:

Dr. H. v. M. Miller,
Dr. V. H. Taliferro,
Dr. W. H. Cummings,
Dr. W. S. Arnstrong,
Dr. D. H. Howell,
Dr. W. A. Love,

Dr. Charles Pinckney.

The casket was covered with beautiful floral offerings, placed there by loving hands. The remains were interred in Oaki etery.

In pursuance to call, a number of physicians met at the hall of the Atlanta Society of Med-icine May 19th, expressive of their respect to the memory of the late Dr. J. M. Johnson. Dr. J. F. Alexander was called to the chair and Dr. Arch Avary requested to act as secre-

Whereas, By the providence of God death has removed from our midstour distinguished brother, Dr. John M. Johnson, for so many years a leader in his profession, and by his wide knowledge a guide to his brethren and a benefactor to humanity; therefore be it.

Resolved, That we, members of the medical profession of Atlanta, assembled to do honor to his memory, do recognize in his death that a great and good man has gone to his just reward, and that in his long and blameless life we find an example worthy of our emulation and reverence.

Resolved, That we extend to his family and relatives our warm sympathy in this their great bereavement, believing at the same time that their sorrow must be tempered by the realization of the fact that his well rounded life reached its fich function, and left behind him many hearts to mourn his loss and remember his kindly and charitable ministrations.

Resolved, That the medical profession, as a mark

NO KIMBALL HOUSE SODA WATER.

The Saloon Will Not be Changed into a Soda Water Palace, "I can't sav yet what use we will put our saloon to," said Mr. L. W. Scoville, of the Kimball last night.
"Have you no idea?" asked a CONSTITUTION

"Have you no idea?" asked a CONSTITUTION reporter.

"No, I can't say that we have. In fact, we have not given the question a final study yet."

"Well, you won't be allowed to sell liquor?"

"I guess not, but we wilk have to attend the wants and desires of our patrons."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean just what I say. For instance, a stranger comes to the hotel and wants a bottle of wine at dinner. We will be compelled to supply his demands or he will never come again, and if we lose custom that way we had just as well close up. We must, of course, have some place to keep these goods."

"What about the big soda fountain in the saloon?"

"What about the big soda fountain in the salonn"
"Oh, that's all bosh. We can't keep that place open unless we put good men there and we can't put them there on the income of a soda water fountain. No, I can't tell you yet what we will do with it."

Since the prohibition election Mr. Scoville has developed quite a talent for card writing. Several weeks ago a gentleman in Goldsboro, N. C., wrote to Mr. Scoville asking him what effect local option had had on Atlanta. Mr. Scoville replied and his reply was printed in the Goldsboro Messenger. The latter was a salty one and spoke in no uncertain terms. What he said Mr. Scoville declared was "mainly governed by the effect which the set will have upon our hotel business, particularly upon the general business of the city."

THE CULLON BILL.

An Interesting Letter From Hon, N. J.

A short time ago the Atlanta chamber of commerce adopted resolutions touching the Collom interstate commerce bill.

These resolutions were forwarded to Hon. N. J. Hammend, congressman from this dis-

Yesterday Captain R. J. Lowry, president of the chamber of commerce, received the following letter from Congressman Hammond:

House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., May 17.—The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Atlants, Ga. Gentlemen—For several days I have been unwell, hence the delay in acknowledging the receipt of your resolutions of the 12th instant as to the Cullom interstate commerce bill.

The popular demand that common carriers, whose property was valuable chiefly because of the monopolies granted to them by the public, should not use that property to the injury of the public by such wrongs as unjust discriminations between persons and places was both natural and just.

should not use that property to the injury of the public by such wrongs as unjust discriminations between persons and places was both natural and just.

Legislative bodies have not been indifferent to that demand. Their care has been to deal with the subject so as to do least harm to those cornorations representing so much of the wealth of our citizens in them directly invested, and so much more indirectly dependent on their prosperity, while enforcing all the rights of the public.

So offerent are the circumstances of the railroads in any state, as to cost of construction and repairs, lengths, grades, directions, competition from other carriers, etc., that great difficulties appeared when fixed and unbending rules, applicable to all in that state, were sought to be applied. Many of the states solved the problem by having state railroad commissions so organized as that, while they could protect the public, they allowed elasticity to the system. Our own state so acted, wisely and to the satisfaction of our people. But under our form of government a state commission can deal only with commerce beginning and ending within that state. Like wrongs exist as to commerce "among the several states," and as to those wrongs a like demand comes from the people of the United States. But by so much as the whole country exceeds one of its component states, the difficulties in fixing such unhending trules in one of them increase when we consider all the railroads in all the United States.

A railroad commissions for the United States to supplement the operations of state commissions and help them to formulate a plan by which to control both "interstate and interstate commerce seems to me to be the logical result of the best thought on this great business proposition.

And because the Cullom bill as it passed the sense seems substantially to supply the want of the situation, I expect to support that bill when it comes before the house of representatives for consideration.

With sentiments of high regard for the members of your

THE MUCH DISCUSSED PHOTO-GRAPHS IN A NEW LIGHT.

Interview With the Agent who Distributes Them-He Denies Some of the Stories Told About Them--A Pretty Romance-The Knights of La-bor-Sam Jones and Sam Small.

The photographs of "the cigarette maker," which are displayed in the show windows of the tobacco dealers in all parts of the city, continue to excite interest What shall be done with them?

The police appear to have determined to let them severely alone. The postal authorities are undecided whether or not they may be classed as indecent, and therefore hesitate to

The church-going people openly express their condemnation of the photographs.

The don't-care-a-cent people view the photographs with satisfaction, and pooh pooh the idea of police intervention or of action by the

"Is the position represented in the photograph actually that of the operative while at work?"

"Certainly; the girls wear short dresses during working hours, and as they assume the most comfortable positions, it is but natural that a small portion of their ankles should be innocently exposed. A visitor to our factory will see hundreds of girls sitting unconscious-will see hundreds of girls sitting unconsciously in such positions."

"Is it true that the girls so photographed have been subjected to insult by letters addressed to the numbers on their tables?"

"No, sir; the letters, written principally by soft-brained young men, have been more of an amusing than unpleasant character, some of them proposing matrimony, and offering good references to show the sincerity of the writers.

his photograph and requested permission to visit her at her home. To his surprise, per-haps, she declined to permit him to do so and, at the same time, frankly informed him that she had never entertained serious intention where he was concerned. He determined to visit Richmond, go boldly to the factory and ask for an interview with the fair maiden whose image had hanted him for so many days and nights. When he arrived at the factory and stated the object of his visit, he was politely informed that the cigarette makers were not allowed to receive visitors. Disappointed but not daunted, he returned to his hotel to devise a plan by which he might meet the girl whom he had come so far to see. At the hotel he unexpectedly met an old friend and college mate, whom he had not seen in several years. At its conclusion he was delighted to hear his friend say: 'I can possibly render you assistance. Show me the photograph.' It was shown to him, and he instantly recognized it as that of a young lady he knew. 'Why,' he said, 'I know the young lady well. Her family was formerly in affluent circumstances, but, like many others, the reverses of fortune caused by the war now compel her to make her own support.' To make a long story short, the Denver man war now compel her to make her own support. of any postal official."
The agent declared that he was expecting a large lot of photographs of Sam Jones and Sam Small for distribution in Atlanta.

THE GAME TODAY.

The Atlanta and Macon Clubs This After-

The incessant rain for the past two days has prevented the games between the Atlantas and Charlestons. This afternoon the Macon club will play the Atlantas, at 3:45. The Macon team has been signally successful on its northern trip, and is regarded as one of the strongest clabs in the learning the property of the strongest clabs in the learning the property of the strongest clabs in the learning the property of the strongest clabs in the learning the property of the strongest clabs in the learning that the property of the property of the strongest clabs in the learning that the property of the proper and is regarded as one of the strongest clabs in the league. It numbers among its stockholders such mp as President Proudfit, Messrs. C. D. Findlay, Ed L. Brown, Lee Ellis and others, which is a sure guarantee that the best baseball talent of the country has been procured. Cyclone Miller, the wonderful pitcher of the Macon team, will probably occupy the box today. The Macon club has been tying the Atlanta for three weeks, but Atlanta has at last pulled away from her, and now holds a good second. Umpire McQuade will be on hand, and the public can rely upon having excellent umpiring during the game. Conway and Mappes will act as the battery for Atlanta.

Diamond Dust.

Lynch plays first base in splendid shape for At-ianta, and is hitting very hard. Dundon and McVey will play with the Charles-ton club against the Nashvilles tomorrow. It is rumored that Charleston has signed George Eradley who, recently pitched for the Athletics of Philadelphia.

The playing of Stricker on second base is the finest ever seen in the south, and he is a whole team by himself. Macon has a new pitcher in the person of E. Chaimberlin, who will pitch one of the games against Atlanta.

against Atlanta.

Mr. Isasc G. Haas, the vice president of the Savannah club, is now in the city, and will witness the Macon Atlanta game today.

President Proudfit will doubtless visit Atlanta this week to witness some of the games between Macon and the Atlanta champions.

Memphis has now one of the strongest teams in the Southern league, and we predict that before the season is over she will stand very near the top. Rearden, of the Augusta club, has been fined $100, and suspended for the rest of the season. He is charged with insubordination and general bad playing.
Mscon has some of the best base runners in the Southern league, and today they expect to give an exhibition of their base running on the Atlanta southern reague, and tooky they expect to give an exhibition of their base running on the Atlanta grounds at 3:45.

Manager Peltz and the Macon team arrived from Nashville yesterday afternoon, and are quartered at the Kimball. Peltz is an excellent manager and understands his business.

The Atlanta management has offers for two of her players, but has declined to accept them, as she is thoroughly satisfied with her team and intends to "stand pat" the balance of the season. Umpire Young has not been heard from for a number of days, and it is said that he has tendered his resignation, and will cease endeavoring to umpire. Mr. Young has at last come to the same conclusion as the public—that he is incompetent and unfit to umpire.

Hard Feelings Healed. It is a well known fact that hard feelings exist between Macon and Atlanta. There is a sim-ple way by which this can be avoided. It is to be hoped for the good of all interested that the plan-will be adopted. The constant use of Base Ball to bacco is the required remedy to heal this hard twelve o'clock last night.

Sasseen lives in Bell's bottom, between Simpson and Alexander street. Late last night he went to his home and gave his wife a most unmercitul beating, and then began breaking up the furniture. The woman's cries for help and the man's curses aroused the neighbors, and some one hurried the neighbors, and some one hurried off for a policeman. Patrolmen Phillips and Carlyle responded, and when they entered the house Sasseen picked up a club and made a desperate assault upon Patrolman Phillips. The patrolman was forced to use his club, and at the first stroke knocked the negro down, but in an instant he was on his feet and was moving for the door, where he was given another lick, which tumbled him again. Again, however, he gained his feet and in a second was rushing away with the two officers in pursuit. Near Sasseen's home is a large deep pond, n's home is a large deep pond, is the flying negro suit. Near Sasseen's home is a large deep pond, and for this the flying negro ran. When he reached the pond he sprang into the water and waded out to the middle, turned around and laughed at his pursuers. The water was waist deep, and the patrolmen were at a loss to know how to get Sasseen out. Finally they agreed to draw straws, with the understanding that the one wholegot the short straw was to wade

The short straw fell to Patrolman Carlyle, and with his characteristic fondness for water, started in, and in a short time brought en to shore. Sasseen is now in the city u, and Patrolman Carlyle is at home by a warm fire. Sasseen's wife was terribly beaten. Her head was cut in several places, and her

This time the burglars carried away a box of hams, a lot of tobacco and some cigars. An entrance was effected by prizing out one of the iron bars in the back windew, making an opening large enough for a twelve-year-old boy to get through. By this means the burglars succeeded in opening the door, as it was found unbarred this morning.

Mr. C. H. Smith, who lives at 108 White-hall street, had a funny experience with rats yesterday.

Mr. Smith is a lover of pets, but he has a horror of rats, and don't want one in two hun-dred yards of him. Rats seem to like Mr. Smith, however, and up to yesterday he was greatly annoyed by them, and avers that there were rats on his lot as large as ordinary house cats. At all times of night the rats could be caus. At all times of night the rats could be seen capering over his yard and having a regular moonlight picnic. Mr. Smith feared them worse than a negro does a rabbit's foot, and said he would give half of his salary to get rid of them

"I can run every rat off the place," said a friend to whom Mr. Smith was relating his

"You can?" asked the gentleman eagerly.

"Are you anxious to know?"

"Then I will tell you. If you will get a white rat and turn it loose where the gray or Sherman rats are every one will leave."

"Is that so?"

"Of course it is. Try it."

And Mr. Smith hurried off and paid a dollar for a large white rat. He carried it home and turned it loose in a large hole in the basement. The rat hadn't been released more than a half minute before the old gray rats began to scamper around over the floor. Mr. Smith perched himself on a trash box and with a broom stick laid out seventeen of the creatures. The rats looked like they were frightened nearly to death, and after a time the old white rat came out of the hele, and then the gray rats went back in as big a hurry as they came out. Mr. Smith has bought two more white rats, and says he does not fear further trouble.

That splendid new residence of Captain E. F. May, corner Boulevard and Morris street, containing 17 elegantly finished rooms, with two bath rooms, storeroom, china closet, coal room, laundry room with stationary tubs, closets in all the chambers, electric call bells in all the rooms, speaking tubes connecting upstairs dining room and kitchen. Gas and water pipes throughout the building, a well built two story barn, all on nice corner lot with grass lawn, brick sidewalk and lawn in front: in fact, everything that is necessary to constitute an attractive home.

well built two stary part, at on fince corner lot with grass lawn, brick sidewalk and lawn in front: in fact, everything that is necessary to constitute an attractive home.

The Boulevard and Jackson street are becoming fashionable thoroughfares, and now with paved walks into the city, with gas and water assured, and street car only one block away, where else can you find such a home? Water as good as it is in the mountains, fresh and pure air, free from all the smoke and dust of the center of the city, this location is certainly inviting. No use of going away from home in the summer, from actual experience of those that lived on that hill: at no time, day or night, do they suffer from heat. The property is not offered because Captain May is dissatished with his home, but he has large grounds near his new factory that he desires to improve.

Terms—One third cash, balance one and two years, with 8 per cent interest.
